

How students are locked into an exam

Instructors have the option of locking students into an exam until they have submitted it for grading, or allowing them to exit early. This optional exam setting for LockDown Browser has a default setting of "off". When set to off, students who leave an exam before submitting it will have to provide a reason for exiting the exam early. This reason can then be viewed by the instructor.

Here is how it works.

Go to the LockDown Browser Dashboard and select "Modify Settings" for the exam.

In the Advanced Settings section, look for "Lock students into the browser until exam is completed". The default state is deselected, which will enable a student to exit the browser if a problem or emergency arises (e.g. Internet connection failure).

If this option is left deselected, and if a student attempts to exit the browser during an exam, they will encounter the following prompt.

Do NOT close the browser until the exam is complete. Your instructor will be notified if you exit the exam early.

If the student selects "Close the Browser", the student is then required to enter a reason for exiting the exam early.

Provide a reason why you are exiting the browser before the exam is completed.

My roommate just called and was in an accident. I need to go help her.

The date/time the student exited the exam, as well as the reason provided by the student, is reported to the instructor from the LockDown Browser Dashboard. The numeric indicator on the context menu shows new instances of a student exiting the exam early.

The instructor can then see when the student exited the exam and the reason provided by the student for exiting early.

Sessions where students exited LockDown Browser before the exam was complete

First	Last	Date ▲	Warnings
Jane	Smith	10 Mar 2014 @ 11:29AM	Student exited LockDown Browser early Reason stated: "My roommate just called and was in an accident. I need to go help her."

If the instructor is using Respondus Monitor (the webcam component for LockDown Browser), the warning will instead appear in the "Automated Notes/Warnings" section.

- This early exit capability is only available in LockDown Browser 1.0.6 or higher. If a student is running an older version of the browser, they will be locked into the exam, regardless of the instructor's setting for the exam.
- If a student exits an exam early, and if only one attempt is permitted for the exam, it might be necessary to reset the exam for the student.
